CHANDIGARH: Adesh University, Bathinda, is charging ₹40.28 lakh as tuition fee for the MBBS course at the time of admission, even though the Punjab government rules say that students should be admitted in the government quota with a fee of ₹2.2 lakh for the first year. The move to charge five-year fee in one go has upset parents of medical aspirants.

Unlike in the past, when Baba Farid University of Health Sciences (BFUHS), Faridkot, held centralised counselling for MBBS admissions for the entire state every year, this time Adesh University is holding its own counselling on June 17.

According to a state government notification (March 7) to take MBBS seats out of the government quota — which is 50% of the total seats (based on merit) in any institute — students will have to pay ₹2.2 lakh for the first year. The annual fee will keep increasing by 10% in subsequent years, taking the total fee for the five-year course to ₹13.42 lakh. Students who will get admission in the management quota will pay ₹6.6 lakh in the first year.

However, as per the prospectus of Adesh University, even those who will get admission on merit in the government quota will have to pay fee equal to that for students who will get seats in the management quota. The fee section of the prospectus states that tuition fee of ₹6.6 lakh will be charged in the first year from all students except NRIs/foreign nationals. The fee will keep increasing by 10% in the subsequent years. In the final year, students will have to pay ₹9.66 lakh. For the five-year course, the fee works out to be ₹40.28 lakh.

The prospectus also states that if a candidate leaves the institute/shifts or migrates to another institute, after the last date of admission (June 18) or on completing the full course, including internship training, due to any reason, the security

TIMING OF COUNSELLING

Adesh University is holding admission counselling prior to that of Baba Farid University of Health Sciences (BFUHS), Faridkot, which conducts counselling for all medical colleges of the state.

Adesh University is holding the counselling on June 17, while BFUHS will do it on June 21.

Adesh University is also asking candidates to submit their original certificates, which will limit their chances of seeking admission in other institutes, where the fee is much less.

will stand forfeited. "In addition, he will have to pay the balance fee for the entire course. For this purpose, he/she will have to furnish, at the time of admission, a bank guarantee or surety bond for the amount equivalent to the balance fee of the entire duration of the course along with an affidavit duly sworn in by the candidate and his parents and duly attested by an executive magistrate," it states.

The Association of of Medical Aspirants, has slammed the unive demanding the entire fe years in one go.

DEEMED UNIVERSITY HAS 150 SEATS

Earlier known as Institute of Medical Education and Research, Bathinda institute was given status of a deemed university and is now known as University. It has 15 seats. As per the state notification, 75 seats must be filled by tuition fee of ₹2.2 lakh first year. These seats filled on the merit of India Pre-Medical Test (AIPMT-2014).

When contacted, D chancellor of Adesh University said, "We are charging the Punjab government notification." In response that as per the no the university should ₹2.2 lakh, he said he had a copy of the prospectus would get back after look at it.

Vini Mahajan, principal secretary, medical education research, Punjab, was unable for comment.
